OPERATIC ECHOES.

AUSPICIOUS OPENING OF THE METROPOL-ITAN SEASON.

The interest exhibited in the firs, week of opera at the Metropolitan Opera House augurs well for the success of the season. Doubtless the heartiness of the enjoyment given by the first three representawas due in part to the fact that opera-lovers hungry for their favorite form of entertainment after their long vacation, but the satisfaction which the performances gave was well-grounded by their artistic excellence. The disturbing results of insufficient rehearsals were present, of course, especially in "Les Huguenots," and those familiar with the work involved in putting the vast and varied machinery of an opera house in motion have long wished that a plan could be hit upon for obviating the haste which now marks all the preparatory work at the Metropolitan. The most obvious remedy would seem to lie in a reorganization of the system and an extension of the season. Proportionally a season of six months could be given much more cheaply than one of four, and Mrs. Brownell Burnham, and the entire cottage for the artis's naturally demand larger honorariums for an engagement which leaves them without employment nearly three-fourths of the year than they would one employing them half a year. A few successful seasons will simplify the problem by creating a feeling of confidence in the stability of the enterprise, and when once it is recognized that a few unhappy stockholders or a half-dozen unsuccessful representations will not disturb the under-planing of the institution, it will be much easier to strengthen the company year after year and maintain the performances on a high level of artistic excellence. The members of the German Cartellverband say that one purpose of their boycott against the Metropositan Opera House is to compel that institution to develop its own singers instead of waiting until one has burst into tuil bloom in their country and then unceremoniously plucking it and transplanting it to New-York. It is an excellent contention, of course, and the plan suggested will be entirely feasible so soon as the people of New-York are entirely weaned of their old propensity (the fruit of Italian coddling) for going to the opera for the sake of the prima donna or the prime tenere instead of the drama. Nothing would be more promising of success on these lines to make a beginning with Fraculein Bettag than to make a beginning the control of the court opera in Berliu. She is foung, comely and talented, a graceful actress and well-schooled singer. Her vocal endowment is not extraordinary, but nevertheless con-siderable, and her work in "Lohengrin" proved plainly that she is still developing. She is made of the kind of artistic metal that deserves cherishing. So far as can be foreseen, many years of usefulness lie before The same might he said of Fraculcin Koschoska and of Herr Beck, who, barring a slightly discouraging vibrate, gave evidence in his singing of the trying music of the Herald in "Lohengrin" that he is a thoroughly musical artist.

Three of the newcomers who have pleased have reached the zenith of their powers. They are Frau Moran-Olden, Herr Perotti and Herr Grienauer. The artistic temperament of the first and last of these, we should say (judging entirely by their accomplishments since they came here and ignoring their antecedents), are more in harmony with the spirit of modern German opera than that of the tenor, whose heroics are likely to be bounded by the horizon of Meyerbeer. Frau Moran-Olden's voice is of remarkably fine quality, ut its range is not quite equal to the music of Valentine, this shortcoming showing itself unpleasantly in her use of that vocal itself the Italian singing masters which note-but which some critics seem to think is de-scribed by the term "portamento," Whether ever there came a singer to this country with the tremendous volume of tone which Frau Moran-Olden has at her command is doubtful. Her emotional temperament is warm, her declamation excellent (as one might guess from her experience as a singer in Wagnerian roles) and she knows the use of all the vehicles of dramatic expression. We should say that her impersonation of Bruennhilde will be splendid. Herr Grienauer, who changed the indifferent impression which he created in "Les Huguenois" on the opening night into one of enthusiastic approval by his singing and acting in "Lobengrin," is a ripe and many-sided artist, in whose case our only apprehension is that he may run to excess of feeling and transform pathos into bathos. There is no reason why the public should be led to fear that Telramund is ever in danger of being strangled by his own spleen.

For many years the diversion that our public has derived from the entertainment which the satirical Heine once described as a play in which Catholics and Heine once described as a play in which Catholics and Profestants shoot each other to death to the tune of a Profestants shoot each other to death to the tune of a Profestants shoot each other to death to the dumsy efforts to get rid of Mayerbeer's fifth act. In the time of Mapleson "Les Huguenots" used to end with lime of Mapleson "Les Huguenots" used to end with lime of Mapleson "Les Huguenots" used to end with lime of Mapleson "Les Huguenots" used to end with lime of Mayerbeer's fifth act. In the time of Mayerbeer's fifth act. In the lime of Mayerbeer's f brief curtain on the fourth act and despacement them with a volley to a little noisy music. Time, say three minutes. Under the present regime another expedient is resorted to. After the love duet (and theidental fainting fit) Raoul rushes to the window; Valentine revives in time to make one more effort to restrain him, when the door of the room opens, a file of soldiers enter, level their guns at Raoul and Rill both lovers. This is prompt and efficacious. Hero and heroine being dead, the opera cannot possibly go on, and the audience are satisfied.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The operas at the Metropolitan Opera House this week will be these: Monday, "William Tell"; Wednesday, "Fidelio" and a bailet; Friday, "L'Africaine"; Saturday afternoon, "Lobengrin."

To-night a concert will be given at Chickering Hall for the benefit of L. F. Harrison, long years ago a popular manager of musical entertainments in this On Monday night there will be an entertainment by the Orpheus Quartet Club at the new building of the Young Men's Christian Association, No. 5 East One-hundred and twenty fifth-st., at which Miss Maud Morgan, the Young Ladles' Quartet and others fierr Rosenthal will give an additional concert in Steinway Hall on Tuesday evening, at which he will play Brahms's variations on a theme by Paganini, said to be his most stupendous achievement.

On Friday afternoon and Saturday evening the sec ond public rehearsal and concert of the Philharmonic Society will occur in the Metropolitan Opera House. The solo performers will be Madame Fursch-Madi and Mr. Richard Arnold. Madame Fursch-Madi will sing a scene from Reyer's opera, "Sigurd," and the other pieces in the list are Schumann's "Overture, Scherzo and Finale," Spohr's eighth concerts for vielin, exrerpts from Massenet's "Herodiade," and Rubinstein's "Ocean" symphony in its original shape.

The last of Albert Lester King's four subscription

neerts at Steinway Hall will be given next Saturday evening.

The subscription sale of tickets for the concerts of the Boston Symphony Society will close at Steinway Hall on Thursday of this week. The sale has been large enough to insure a successful financial outcome

THE WEEK IN SOCIETY.

THANKSGIVING DAY, THE OPERA AND WED-

DINGS. The last week has presented all the variety that devotees of fashion could wish for. A day of brilliant weddings, the opening of the opera season, the pleasures of Thanksgiving Day and-teas, for which yesterday was a red-letter day, presenting more attractions than could well receive anything but a fleeting and fashionable visit. Thanksgiving Day, one of the great National holidays, was rather quiet in town, there being little else going on except family On that day society was widely divided between Tuxedo Park, where a big subscription dinner had been arranged, Mrs. Waterbury's large dinner at Pelham Bay and E. D. Morgan's hunt breakfast at Hempstead, L. I. It would be hard to say which was the more enjoyable. At the first were the stanch friends and supporters of Tuxedo Park, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Breese, Mr. and contingent of the place. Mr. Morgan gathered about him the Belnouts, Purdys, Harrimans, Ladenburgs, Birds, and all the Long Island hunting contingent, while the Country Club element, the Kanes, Iselins, Costers and Furmans, were represented at Mrs. Waterpury's hospitable board. There was a pleasant addition to Mrs. Waterbury's dinner and dance in the shape of a new Hungarian band, whose music was looked upon with much favor. It was thought by many that the attendance at the first night of the German opera would suffer owing to its coming on the evo of Thanksgiving, but this was a vain conjecture, and since the opening of the house five years ago there has never been a more brilliant spectacle or a greater array of beauty was as good as the first Assembly or the first Patriarchs' ball of the season, for the debutantes were all out, enjoying fully the privilege of their first night at an opera of seeing and being seen. Among the young ladies particularly noticed were: Mis-Amy Bend, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bend, formerly Townserd, who was with Mrs. W. Vanderbilt; Miss Georgiana Wilmerding, the guest of Mrs. Frederic Goodridge, Miss Hargous, with her sister, Mrs. George B. DeForest, and Miss Dalsy Hurst. They were all in white with the exception of Miss Wilmerding, who wore pale blue crepe and violets.

Among others were Miss Romaine Stone, in pale yellow; Miss Fannie Walker, in pink; Miss Lena Post, daughter of Mrs. Jotham Post, of Paris, also in pink: Mrs. B. C. Porter, wife of artist; Miss Ellen Munroe, of Paris: Mrs. Karrick Riggs, Miss Brooks, of Minneapolls, who is engaged to Charles Williams, brother of Mrs. G. H. Warren, whose guest she was; Mrs. Adolf Ladenburg, Miss Agnes Lawrence and Mrs. E. J. Woolsey. Lady Herbert of Lea was prevented from being present, as she fell down the steps of Mrs. Witson's house when starting for the opera. This, however, did not prevent her accepting Mrs. Lloyd Bryce's invitation to dinner for Friday night.

Tuesday was a busy day for weddings, and as three of them came so close together, it was something of an effort to see them. Miss Annie Berry and Eugene E. Varet were married at Sf. Leo's, the ceremony beginning at 11:30 and continuing until 12:30 o'clock. St Leo's is a delightful little church for a wedding and never looked more attractive. Tall paims relieved the solid white of the altar. At 12:30 o'clock the most brilliant event of the day, the Herbert-Wilson marriage, occurred at St. Rariholomew's Church, where the leaders of the fashionable world of New-York gathered to witness a wedding that was the talk of this call "cercar della nota"-the reaching or feeling for a city and London. The most refined tuste was shown at the church and at the Wilson home, where the breakfast followed. Although receiving many jewels, Miss Wilson were only a pendant of pearls and diamonds attached to a pearl necklace-her husband's gift. Miss Grace Wilson's costume of yellow satin was favorably commented on. Miss Mary An derson, the actress, was a guest at the church and the breakfast, as an intimate friend of Lady Herbert of Lea, the bridegroom's mother.

> another notable wedding, when another Englishman, of William Rauch, married Miss Susan Spring Paton, a daughter of Thomas Paton, whose grandfather, the Rev. Dr. Gardner Spring, was the first paster of the church, and who continued to preach there sixty | paratus. Naturally he refused to show the interior years. Miss Paton had a large number of bridesmalds and a maid of honor. The wedding breakfast followed at her mother's home in West Twenty-secondst., where all the guests were seated at small tables. Another large and fashionable gathering assembled in Calvary Church for the marriage of Miss Katharine Colt and Samuel Sloan, jr., at 3:30 o'clock, and one hour later Miss Eva Johnston became Mrs. Henry A. ar "honest ghost." Some of the stockholders had Coe, in the picture-gallery of her father's house, No. 8 Fifth-ave., where some of John Taylor Johnston's rare and almost priceless Oriental rugs and hangings were displayed in most artistic arrangements. This power, and its novelty could not be doubted. It was, was a quiet wedding, owing to the recent death of in effect, " all the kingdoms of the earth," which satan

The men included J. Bruce Ismay, who is to wed Miss Schleffelin in the Church of the Heavenly Rest on Tuesday at noon; Oaldey and Mr. Bliss, of England. Mrs. Bertrand Reid's large theatre party at the Lyceum Theatre that evening was a pretty affair, nearly seventy seats being taken, the young ladies, with scarcely an exception. going without their bonnets, and, as each one held a bouquet of flowers, that part of the theatre looked like an animated flower garden. To-morrow evening Mrs. Henry Allen, of No. 3 West Thirty-seventh-st will give a large theatre party for her daughter, Miss Dalsy Alien, with a supper and dance to follow. Next Wednesday the first Assembly will be held in Demonico's, and on the Monday following the first Patriarchs' ball. Some fear is felt by lovers of so clety that the season will be a dull one. The three subscription cotillons will be discontinued, and there seems to be every prospect that the New Year's Ball will not take place, unless the effort to obtain the Stewart mansion proves successful. Delmonico can not afford to give up his establish-ment for the time necessary to decorate the rooms in the same elaborate manner as was don last January. There is an opportunity for some enter prising person to take a house like the Siewart mansion for the large subscription balls, dancing classes, private balls and the like, as is the custom in London, where several handsome houses, once it such entertainments. One exceedingly disagreeable which keeps away the most eligible men, would thus be done away with. Delmonico's is in many respects a most convenient place for a ball, but the public's demand on the restaurant is too great to be overlooked by the proprietors, consequently society scriers from the late hours of all the balls.

The lack of balls is creating a greater desire than for many years to patronize the Charity Ball of 1889, which is announced for January 8. Consequently the managers of it feel justified in advancing the price of the boxes to $75 each. These may be had of Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, No. 8 East Twenty-ninth-st., who called at his house: who, as for several years past, will attend to their sale. Many of the stockholders of the Metropolitan sale. Many of the stockholders of the Metropolitan Opera House are retaining their boxes, and the debutants of the season will be largely represented. Yesterday was a day of teas. Mrs. Isaac Bronson, of No. 3 West Thirty-eighth-st., brought out her daughter at one of these entertainments. Mrs. J. H. Screven gave one for her nisce, Miss Elizabeth Ray Van Rensselaer, who was assisted in receiving by her mother, Mrs. Stephen Van Rensselaer, her cousin, Miss Georgiana Wilmerding; Miss Elizabeth Morris, Miss Charlotte Goodridge, Miss Hurst and several other young ladies who were members of the Saturday Evening Dancing Class. Mrs. Frederic Cromwell, No. 3 West Fiftieth-st., gave a large "at home" for her daughter, Miss Cromwell, who was a member of Mrs. Hee's Thesday Evening Dancing Class last winter. Miss Molie Sioan, Miss Hoe, Miss Betts, Miss Van Dyke, Miss Beers, Miss Sands and Miss Littlejohn received. A dinner for twenty-two young people followed. Mrs. C. L. Perkins, No. 47 West Enevenings, Mrs. Elibu Root, No. 25 East Sixty-ninth-st., and Mrs. E. H. Anderson, No. 132 East Thirty-fifth-st., also gave informal teas. Mrs. J. A. G. Beales, of No. 45 West Thirty-second-st., Introduced her daughter, Miss Mary Dolores Beales, who has been through the fashlonable season of London. She is a granddaughter of Eugene Kelly, the banker. The engagement has recently been amounced of Miss Cornella Van Nest Roosevelt, daughter of Mrs. Charles Roosevelt, now on a visit to New-York, after fifteen years' residence in Europe, to Baron Sedditz, of the German army. Their wedding will take place in Grace Church early in January. Baron Sedditz, of the German army. Their wedding will take place in Grace Church early in January. Baron Sedditz, of the German army. THE KEELY MOTOR CRAZE.

A DONKEY-CABBAGE RACE

HOW MUCH LONGER WILL THE CLEVER JUG-GLER BE ABLE TO DELUDE HIS VICTIMS? Tothe Editor of The Tribune. Sir: The success with which Keely has deluded his victims by appealing to their credulity with a mystery and to their cupidity with a promise of "all the kingoms of the earth," which would not be of greater value than the monopoly of infinite power without cost which he dangles before their astonished vision makes him and his antics subjects of unusual His last performance appears to be an issue of $5,000,000 of new stock representing a new covery veiled in mystery, which is to far ourstrip his former one, on which $5,000,000 of stock was is sued and is now held by his dupes. Two of these new millions are to go to the old holders as a compensation to them for their disappointment in not realize ing perpetual motion under the old discovery wo more go to Keely to be sold to the public; and the remaining one million is in the treasury to be sold for the benefit of Keely and the others, half and half.

For fifteen years the donkey has been ridden by Keely with the cabbage on a pole held just in front of his hungry mouth, and now the donkey is told that the cabbage after all is only sham, but that the new cabbage is real, and if he will only consent to run fasenough and far enough he certainly will reach it and

It would seem that the donkey ought to pause and consider before he begins another fifteen-year race after perpetual motion, and it is here proposed to assist him in his reflections by a few facts. More than fifteen years ago Keely made himself known to the public by exhibiting an apparatus in which a pressure was manifested, which, he said resulted from the discovery by him of a new force the nature of which was his secret. Several people, as usual, were astenished at the show and bought and paid for shares in the patent which was prom ised. To give color to the pretence, Keely applied for a patent before 1876, but did not assign to the purchasers their shares; whereupon some of them protested against the issue of the patent unless their shares were recognized in the grant. The Patent Office replied to these protests that it could not rec-ognize the rights claimed unless there was a written assignment filed in the office, which the claimants did not have. The Commissioner, however, called upon the Keely to furnish a "working model" of his invention which, of, course, he could not do, and his application was rejected. The specification and drawings of this apparatus show a very silly form of the common per petual motion machine, of which there are thou ands. It was open to the public for some years when, under a new rule of the office, it, along with all other rejected applications, was withdrawn from inspection; but it is in the office, together with the protests of those who had paid Keely for a share in t. I examined it years ago, and informed Mr. Lam son and others of Keely's stockholders of it. Mr. Lamson told me that he had charged Keely with deception, because he had always said that he never had applied for a patent, and that Keely explained it by saying that he had purposely concealed his invention from the Patent Office in that application to profitable, extended his operations and became well known to many influential people by his exhibitions. In the winter of 1875-76 he produced two metallic spheres, one about thirry inches in diameter, hung like an ordinary terrestrial globe, which, he said, would reroive with a force equal to two horse-power, and would continue to run when once started as long as the tennial Exhibition should be open, and until the thing was worn out by friction. In starting it Keely used to have a blackboard in the room, on which he would write a few figures in chalk in the presence of his dupes, and would say that at a certain time the globe would start-and it did, and would revolve as long as the lookers-on remained to see it. Keely pretended to explain this phenomenon by a string of unintelli-The Brick Presbyterian Church, Fifth-ave, and gible jargon; but the point of it all Thirty-seventh-st., was at 1 o'clock the scene of was that he said the thing ran in consequence but the point of it all of its internal mechanical arrangement or, in other words, that by combining pieces of metal in a certain way power was generated without any other expense than that required to construct the construction which did the miracle; but if his state ments were true it existed inside of that globe, and could be produced indefinitely with the result of producing an indefinite amount of horse-power without The stock about this time rose to a great price sense enough to see that if Keely's story were true nothing more could be desired, for it must as one supersede coal and all other means of producing once offered. But, on the other hand, if Keely's story Tuesday was otherwise marked by a pink dinner were not true, then he was simply an impostor who > ply with this reasonable request, and many of his stockholders sold out and left him; since which time the stock has gradually declined down to the present time, when its value is admitted to be nothing. In view of these facts the curious question is why the donkey goes on any further. The revolving ball is either a real cabbage capable of feeding the donkey with a perpetual feast, like the widow's cruse of oil, or it is only a sham such as any good mechanic could construct and operate just as Keeiy did. Why doesn't the donkey balk and insist on biting into the cabbage! If it is real the Keely stock is worth untold millions. It would put an end to steam engines and electric batteries forever. One of those balks in the corner of a room would make all the heat and light which could be used, and have power to sell; and all that would be needed would be to learn Keely's calculaties signs on the blackboard in order to make it start, and to stop it when it had done enough. But if the ball is only a trick, then, of course, Keely could be sent to prison, and his victims could close their accounts and be sure that they would less no more by him.

CIRCUMSTANCES. F. O. Beach was happy last evening ov acquittal together with August Beimont, William Rutherford, William Reardon, all club men, and John Doty, one of Mr. Belmont's employes, in the case brought against them by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, charging them with violating the statute by coursing rabbits at the meeting of the Hempstead Club at Garden City on Wednesday. Mr. Beach said to a Tribune reporter who called at his house:

We are making arrangements for coursing again. I understand hey are proposing to re-arrest us if we attempt it. The sherilis ought not to be allowed to make arrests for coursing outside of the city. Of course it all tight for them to make arrests here in the city when they see a horse mistreated in the street, but they have too much freedom outside of the city. The audience was with us all the time and gave a shout when the decision was reached. Why, in England rabbit-coursing is a common thing. Thousands of propic go to see the contest for the Waterloo Cup and it is recarded as a national affair. It is also a well-known sport in the West, especially in California. There are few sports in the world where there is so little suffering entailed. If the rabbits gets away, he gets away seet free and if he is killed he dies instantly. We gave abundant proof of this in the trial. We shall probably have another rabbit coursing match in about two weeks, although I cannot speak definitely on this point.

Henry Bergh, president of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, by whose instructions the arrests were made, was also seen at his home last evening. He said:

The decision of the jury does not affect our making arrests. It does not repeal the law. The law stands there just as it was before. There is one thing in connection with this case and that is that down there it was impossible to get a jury that did not know Doty and some of the other detendants. To get a fair interpretation of the law from men who all knew Doty was not to be expected.

"What do you think about the proposition to have rabbit-coursing legalized, which is being talked about !" I would not do the Legislature the injustice to believe that they would pass an act of such wanton crueity," was the reply. "I don't see the difference between rablet coursing and dog fighting and cock fighting. FUNERAL OF MRS. SHERMAN.

BURIED IN CALVARY CEMETERY, ST. LOUIS.

THE SERVICES IN ST. XAVIER'S CHURCH AND AT THE GRAVE-THE PALL-BEARERS CHOSEN BY GENERAL SHERMAN.

St. Louis, Dec. 1 .- At an early hour this morning the friends of Mrs. W. T. Sherman began to assemble at the Union Depot to receive the funeral party George D. Capen, General Sherman's business agent and intimate friend in this city; James E. Yeatman, the managing pall-bearer, an old friend of the Sherman family; Mrs. Judge Reber, a relative of Sherman, and Mrs. Reber's son, were first at the station. The funeral train was due at 7 o'clock, but was thirty-five minutes late. Before its arrival, Henry Hitchcock, R. C. Kerens, General Beckwith, Colonel Moore and Captain Hathaway had joined the The train entered the depot at 7:45, the funeral party being in the private car of President Roberts, of the Pennsylvania road. Tansey was General Sherman's next door neighbor, and F. A. Drew and D. R. Francis, Governor-elect of Missouri, were well acquainted with the family. There were two wagon loads of floral offerings beside the hearse, when the coffin was placed therein. The funeral party entered carriages at the Poplar-st, entrance of the depot and went to St. Xavier's Church, at Grand and Lindell aves.

At the church the coffin was borne to the altar where a bier with candelabras at the head and foot had been placed to receive it. The church was crowded. When the family and relations were seated, the Rev. Father Bronsgoest, the paster, came out from the vestry and began the celebration of mass. In accordance with the request of Mrs. Sherman, the celebration of mass was followed by the simple service for the dead, no sermon being preached. The music was the ordinary accompaniment for such service. The church was heavily draped. At the conclusion of the brief service the coffin was returned to the hearse and taken to Calvary Cemetery, where the services at the grave were brief and simple.

General Sherman has two lots in Calvary Cemetery, one is a pertangular lot, it which his two sons and three gradeluldren are buried. The other is a lot almost circular in shape, which until to day was untenanted. It adjoins the other lot, and it was the wish of the General that his wife should be buried there. A space ten feet square has been reserved in the centre of the lot for a monument, and Mrs. Sherman's body was placed in the prettlest spot between the proposed monument and the roadway in front of the lot. Room has been left beside her for her husband, who intends to be buried there. A monument for both is to be creeted. front of the lot. Room has been left beside turner for both is to be errected.

The season is here and Christmas presents must be bought for relatives and friends. Of course their is nothing that would be appreciated more than an article of Diamond Jewelry. Peo ple having a great many presents to make and do not care to TAX THEIR POCKETS TOO HEAVILY. WE COME TO THE RESCUE.

No city in the world can boast of such an establishment as ours. The enormity of the stock of DIAMONDS AND WATCHES that we carry is beyond conception. Our showcases contain THOUSANDS OF DIAMOND BINGS.

THOUSANDS OF DIAMOND LACE PINS, THOUSANDS OF PAIRS OF DIAMOND EARRINGS, AND THOUSANDS OF GOLD AND SILVER WATCHES

AND EVERY KIND OF JEWELRY ever manufactured, in unique and elegant designs.

You could spend the whole day admiring the contents of our stock and then leave without seeing half of it. IT IS AN IMPOSSIBILITY FOR ANY ONE NOT TO GET SUITED HERE. We have Diamonds to suit every one's purse in regard nees. We are quite alive to the fact that there are diamonds and watches length at this time of the year other, and therefore shall not lose the opportunity, but SELL AT VERY LOW PRICES and look at neither cost, price nor value, thereby maintaining our reputation of selling afor half the price charged elsewhere, and leaving all would be COMPETITORS FAR BEHIND and accomplish our aim to reduce this colussal stock. When you speak of diamonds you must not lose sight of the fact that all other precious stones, EMERALDS, RUBIES AND SAPPHIRES, such a variety of colored gens. Buyers of gens are aware of the scarcity of colored stones, and jewellers are resping a harvest by chargidg exerbitant prices for them. All we have to say is that if you contemplate surchasing this classifier of the same of th Riemann and had a large family. One of its data, son-inters, Edith, married Francis C.
